But we rejoin that men do not get to be intolerably bad all at once. We based our prediction upon the assumption that the Republicans have schooled themselves into the belief that the Southern States have no rights which the Northern States are bound to respect. Even the Spirit goes so far as to say that the Democrats know that but for fraud Mr. Cleveland would never have occupied the White House, nor the House of Representatives nor the Senate been a Democratic body. What the Spirit means to say is that the white men in some of the Southern States refuse to allow a negro majority to control the elections in those States. The Mussissippi State Constitution, for example, contains provisions which render it highly improbable that under their operation the negro majority will ever be able to control the Caucastan minority. But these provisions are, we think, ac knowledged by everybedy to be consistent with the Constitution of the United states, including all the articles of amendment to that instrument. The Spirit had in mind, too, no doubt, the charge which has so often been brought against the white men in other Southern States, that they have either cheated or defrauded the negro out of his vote. We, therefore, charge the Republicans with a fixed purpose to undo these wrongs which they thus denounce, and to do what they thought they had done when they passed the election-laws now upon the Federal statute-book, To suppose that charges which they bring against the Democrats, will not attempt to go much arther than they have heretofore gone in "boosting" the negro into prominence in the Southern States, is to lose sight of the history of the Republican party this connection, and of revolutionary intends to assist in the work of righting the wrongs to which it refers, will it not compelled to "play the Federal electionlaws for all they are worth?" We are almost ready to ask that paper whether es or does not regret that the Reus have not heretofore so used those election-laws as to secure the su premacy of their party not only in the outh, but in the whole Union?

Philip W. McKinney, Governor of Virginia To the Editor of the Dispatch:

To the Editor of the Dispatch:

The announcement in the Dispatch of the safe return of Governor McKinney and his party from Chicago, is pleasing intelligence; and it has been especially gratifying to the State pride of Virginians, to note the marked attention and distinguished respect, which, amid all the vast and varied throngs of visitors from all quarters of the world, to that mighty and magnificent "Exposition," were manifested to the fine presence and frank courtliness of Virginia's Governor.

The Virginia lady's sharp retert to the criticism of the Westerner, upon the disparasing pairriness of the "Virginia Building," in contrast with the costly and marvelous display of other State buildings on the grounds, brings to memory an incident which occurred in 1847. There were ident which occurred in 1847.
